

Jo Wratten

Jo has worked at Friars since September 2000. She started as Year 6 teacher and became deputy headteacher in 2005, a role which she currently shares. She is also the school's literacy coordinator and took on the role of acting headteacher as it was needed in 2006 and 2011. Over the past 9 years she has worked closely with teachers at Friars and other Southwark schools as an Advanced Skills Teacher (AST) and in a Literacy consultancy role. Friars has always been a school where she has been proud to work and she greatly enjoys and values working with all the staff, children and parents.
